

Giuseppe Assogna, graduated in Medicine and specialized in Liver Diseases and Metabolism at the University La Sapienza, Rome.

After a short period of medical activities, I gained extensive experience (1982 – 2008) in multinational pharmaceutical companies (Janssen, Organon, Speciality European Pharma, The Medicines Company) as Director of Clinical Research, Medical and Regulatory Affairs, Country Manager in the areas of clinical research, medical affairs, registration and reimbursement of products, pharmaco-economics and market access. I also carried out important educational projects, launch, support and defense of numerous products, including crisis management; I played governance and corporate management and actually scientific managerial and strategic consultant for pharmaceutical companies and scientific societies.

Since 2012 I am President at SIFEIT - Italian Society of Economics and Ethics on Drug Studies on Therapeutic Interventions.

Author of numerous publications and scientific communications, member of Associations and Scientific Societies, I held teaching positions and currently teach in Master and Postgraduate courses at the faculty of Medicine in Sapienza, Catholic and Tor Vergata University in Rome.